

Disclaimer

The Black & Gerngross, P.C. website is for informational purposes only. The information on our website is not legal advice, and you should not rely on it as such. It should not be construed as a representation that any of our attorneys are able to practice law in jurisdictions where they are not authorized to do so.

Our website should not be construed as an effort to solicit new clients or new engagements from existing clients. Your use of our website does not create or constitute an attorney-client relationship, and our website is not an offer to create an attorney-client relationship. Please do not send us any information concerning a legal matter unless you have spoken with one of our attorneys and obtained authorization from that attorney to send that information.

We are pleased to communicate with you by e-mail; however please be aware that due to the nature of e-mail communication your e-mail messages may not be fully private or confidential. Therefore, please do not send confidential or sensitive information to us by e-mail without speaking with us in advance. If you communicate with us through e-mail, or through other means, about a matter in which we do not already represent you, your communication will not create an attorney-client relationship and may not be treated as privileged or confidential.

Privacy

We respect your privacy. Your name and contact information will not be shared with a third party without your consent.