Mark W. Drasin has more than twenty years of experience representing businesses, insurance companies, institutions, governmental entities and individuals in complex civil and criminal litigation in federal, state and administrative proceedings. Mark's extensive litigation experience has a focus in insurance matters, including insolvency, regulation and coverage. In addition, Mark has substantial experience representing clients in business litigation lawsuits and injunctions.

Mark also represents regulators, corporations, universities and other institutions in investigations relating to fraud, discrimination, wrongful discharge and regulatory compliance.

Besides civil matters, Mark is experienced in white collar criminal defense, including trials and representing individuals and institutions before state and federal grand juries. He applies that experience in assisting investigations and prosecutions by federal and state law enforcement agencies in complex regulatory and financial fraud matters.

Mark is the firm's eDiscovery Coordinator and coordinates electronic and other discovery for large corporate and institutional clients.
